We will be thankful to our friends if they will make an effort to extend our Weekly circulation among their friends and neighbor, as they will, in that stent, chable us to still further improve our paper. Let each subscriber try to secure an additional one to our list, and we will plodge ourselves to more than compensate they in the improvements and additional labor cost money.

The Slavery Contest Over.

Goshus R. Giddings, in his late address to his constituents, speaks thus of the slavery contests in which he has been engaged :

"Of the intensity of those condicts which so rapidly succeeded each other for seventeen years I have no time to speak; if is sufficient to say that the combination of religinating they were upon the public mind, could not fail of success. Based upon God's attribute of justice they must be respected. Indeed the victory has been already schieved."
